

A PATIENT'S GUIDE TO REIMBURSEMENT OPTIONS FOR MEDICAL CANNABIS

PRIVATE INSURANCE COVERAGE OF MEDICAL CANNABIS IN CANADA

Medical cannabis has been legal in Canada since 2001. As support and evidence for its use grows, more and more third-party group insurers are announcing programs for coverage. This summary of reimbursement options for medical cannabis is intended as a guide for patients and their caregivers.

If you have a private insurance plan, your first step is to review your benefits guide or speak to your provider's customer service to see if you may already have coverage for medical cannabis.

There are a few options that may be available to you:

Healthcare Spending Accounts

Many benefit plans offer Healthcare Spending Accounts that allow plan members to submit for coverage of their medical cannabis with appropriate documentation. This option requires that you are accessing medical cannabis according to the Cannabis Act.

Recent Group Insurer Programs for Medical Cannabis

Over the past 18 months, a number of major group insurers have announced programs for how they will cover medical cannabis. Important to note, these programs are optional and must be "opt-in" at the group plan level. In general, these programs are subject to pre-authorized medical conditions, annual dollar caps, and various administrative procedures. The plan member should always confirm their coverage details and procedures according to their particular plan.

The Spectrum Therapeutics product you receive with your order will be sold in packaging that is compliant with all applicable laws and will vary in appearance from what is displayed here. The images displayed here have been designed to improve your shopping experience by highlighting where your product fits in the Spectrum Framework. Please note, there are risks associated with cannabis use. For information, search online "Health Canada - cannabis health effects."

PROVINCIAL WORKERS COMPENSATION

Each province administers a workers compensation program to assist people who are injured on the job. There are now three provincial programs that have issued guidelines for consideration of medical cannabis.

Workers Compensation Board of PEI

Effective October 25, 2018

The Workers Compensation Board may approve medical cannabis for the following injuries and occupational diseases:

- Spasticity due to spinal cord injury
- Chemotherapy-induced nausea and vomiting
- Loss of appetite in cancer patients and patients with HIV/AIDS
- Symptoms encountered in palliative/end-of-life care

On a case-by-case basis, the Workers Compensation Board may consider a three-month trial of medical cannabis for the following:

- Chronic neuropathic pain
- Opioid/narcotic harm reduction

In addition to these medical conditions, there are several factors that must be met in the consideration for entitlement to medical cannabis. Please consult the policy for full details.

Other Provincial Workers Compensation Bodies

No published policies at this time. Consideration may be given on a case-by-case basis.

INCOME TAX CREDITS

Claiming medical cannabis on your income tax return

Medical cannabis products are eligible medical expenses when authorized by a qualified healthcare professional and purchased from a legal source (licensed producers), according to the Canada Revenue Agency.

You should consult a professional who can help calculate your eligible medical expenses and claim them on your tax return. If you're using tax software, you will be able to enter medical expenses in a deductions section.

How can you access your receipts for income tax purposes?

Calculate your total spend for the year on medical cannabis (dried flower, oil, softgels, and seeds) by following these steps:

1. Sign in to your account at SpectrumTherapeutics.com
2. Scroll to Order History to access a list of all your orders
3. Download receipts of all purchases from the year
4. Tally the total of all your purchases
5. Add this to your medical expenses on your T1 tax form
